Sensory Corners and 'Sensory on a Shoestring'

Glitter Tubes

Glitter tubes are available on Amazon and normally under £5. They are a very cheap and tough alternative to a bubble tube.

The effect is quite mesmerizing, and they are easy to hold, these can be wonderful for distraction as the little stars slowly move down the tubes. They can make wonderful timers for someone who has autism who needs to stop, chill and just do something else.

These are great for distraction and can be used anywhere.

Add a torch and they light up wonderfully well in a dark space for visual work and they look like an amazing Harry Potter wand.
